

Both spending and visitation by UK travellers are expected to recover to 2019 levels by 2025.

Market Insights

Desire and Ability to Travel

Holidays remain a priority spending area for British consumers. More demand is being seen at the premium end of the market than the value end. British travellers are treating themselves on their next break, such as upgrading from a four-star to a five-star hotel, extending their stay from 14 to 18 nights, or travelling in premium class flights.

Planning for the Future

Travellers have increasingly turned to travel agents and tour operators for expert help, advice, and peace of mind on the financial security of their booking, especially for long-haul destinations. Nearly three-quarters of High Value Guests (HVGs) would use a travel agent or tour operator to help research or book a trip to Canada.

Wellness / Conscious Travel

There is increasing awareness and attention among the British toward travelling with purpose. UK travellers prioritize trips that have a positive impact on both people and the planet, are drawn to meaningful/sustainable travel experiences, seek connections with local and Indigenous residents, and pursue regenerative experiences that give back to the communities.

The following are the context and assumptions used to develop the Fall 2022 Market Forecast:¹

Travel sentiment and covid restrictions

- The United Kingdom was the top source for eTA applications during the first eleven months of 2022, slightly ahead of applications from France.
- The UK shows strong signs of pent-up demand for travel, but a subdued economy, inflation and reduced value of the pound will weaken the resurgence of travel.

International travel conditions

- UK travellers are “catching-up” on missed travel by indulging on upgrades or extending their stay relative to pre-pandemic travel patterns.
- Real consumer spending is expected to decline in 2023 due to high inflation.

- The pound has weakened against the Canadian dollar, although faster inflation in the UK has partially offset this. Overall, the purchasing power of UK travellers will be 1.6% weaker in 2023 than in 2019.

Economy

- The outlook for GDP expects a decline of 0.9% in 2023, although a two-year energy price guarantee has helped reduce the risk of a deep recession.
